Gryphon Financial Partners Launches Gryphon University, a Financial Education Resource for Every Generation

New online learning hub gives families a shared place to build financial confidence

COLUMBUS, Ohio (November 9, 2026) Gryphon Financial Partners, a planning-led independent wealth management and multi-family office firm, announced the launch of Gryphon University, a new education section of its website. Gryphon University gives clients and their families a dedicated place to learn about the financial topics that shape their lives, from a first paycheck and first investment account to retirement income, tax planning and the transfer of wealth from one generation to the next.

The project was conceived and developed by Michael Solik, Director, GFP Family Office who guided Gryphon University from initial idea through launch. “The families who navigate financial transitions well are usually the ones where everyone understands the plan and feels prepared to be part of it,” said Solik. “We wanted to give our clients something they could share with their children and grandchildren, so the knowledge does not stay in one generation. Gryphon University is a place to start that education”

Gryphon University is an interactive education platform covering the core subjects of personal wealth. Today the curriculum includes net worth and cash flow, investments, tax strategy, insurance and risk, estate planning, retirement planning, behavioral finance, and philanthropy. Every subject is taught at Beginner, Intermediate and Advanced levels, so learners can start where they are and change levels at any time. A short questionnaire builds a personalized learning path, and worked examples, illustrations and calculators let learners work through the concepts with their own numbers. Content will be added and improved regularly.

Our purpose is helping make people’s lives better, and education is one of the most lasting ways we can do that.” said Joel Guth, CEO and Founder of Gryphon. “Michael saw an opportunity to extend the guidance our advisors provide every day to the whole family, and Gryphon University is the result.”
